"Grant Takes Command" by Bruce Catton – This book gives us invaluable assistance in untangling the enigma of this remarkable Union warrior who has puzzled so many for so long. It gives a detailed and revealing portrait of Grant during the last year and a half of the war. Because he was made commander in chief after his decision victor at Chattanooga, the account of his activities becomes in essence the story of how the war was won. Here is revealed what sort of man it was whom Lincoln took into partnership and what that man did with his share of the responsibilities.

"The Generous Years" by Chet Huntley – The generous years of which Chet Huntley writes began just before the First World War and reached into the mid-twenties. For these were the years of Mr. Huntley's growing up on one of America's last frontiers – the prairies and towns of Montana at the time when traffic accidents were caused by runaway horses, and education meant the one-room school.

"Instrument of Thy Peace" by Alan Paton – Eloquent and affirmative reflections based on the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi.

Few of today's important issues are overlooked as he addresses himself to the hard questions which confront our lives – the dilemmas of faith and doubt, of discouragement, melancholy, violence, of love offered that receives no response.

"Seven Seats To The Moon" by Charlotte Armstrong — J. Middleton Little's quiet suburban existence is shattered when he accidentally becomes the key to an earthshaking plot. In the hospital, Little is offered "seven seats to the moon" by a fellow patient in exchange for his silence about what he has accidentally overheard; that a cataclysm is near and that survivors will be sent to the moon.

"Love With Honor" by Emilie Loring – With her sister Melody slowly recovering from a serious illness, and her fiance Willis Jamerson strangely reluctant to set their wedding date, it is small wonder that beautiful young Randi Scott should view her future with foreboding. Then her new boss, the rich, elderly, public-spirited Jonas, Proposes marriage (in name only) and as she becomes involved in Jona's plans, she also becomes involved with his talented and handsome young protege', Cary Hamilton.

ever, this will be an annual event in the future, In Appomattox County, we have 5 active Girl Scout Troops with 107 registered Girl Scouts participating in this program.

The Girl Scout Fund Drive will begin on Friday, October 17th and will continue through October 27th. The committee plans to contact businesses and professional men and women only, we do not plan a door-to-door canvass this year but if you, as an individual, are interested in this worthy cause and would like to make a contribution please contact Dr. Fratrick or Mrs. Lloyd Hudson who will be serving as treasurer.

The Virginia Skyline Girl Scout Council needs your financial help as this valuable program will continue to be available to girls. In the present day of chaos and uncertainties, the program offered by the Girl Scouts can be the stabilizing balance so needed by today's youth. Scouting is important to girls, to their communities and to our nation. Girl Scouts are doing their share in community services. It's a two way street -- Won't you do yours? What happens tomorrow depends upon what you do today. Support Girl Scouting and Your Community. Give Generously!

The National Park Service is now engaged in intesive study and publicity for "environmental conservation", he explains. For this reason, his efforts here will be tied in with history, of course, but the equally important task of preserving wildlife, natural tree and plant growth, clean air and water supplies so that all Americans can be made aware of both their natural heritage and the myriad activities of men in the past that we call "history."

Mrs. Tilden Lee, a member of the Wreck Island Home Demonstration Club, won seven blue and three red ribbons on exhibits entered at the Virginia State Fair in Richmond.

Blue ribbons were won on canned string beans, lima beans, greens, corn, tomato catsup and chow chow.

A blue ribbon was won on a doll dressed in Civil War period costume (1861 - 1865) which was a bearded Federal officer fully dressed in a frock coat of navy blue with accessories.

Red ribbons were won on canned blackeye peas, beets and sweet peppers.

Fearing that Mrs. Lee's many exhibits might get damaged in the mail, Mrs. Riva Berger Seay, superintendent of the Women's Bldg. brought the items to the Appomattox Post Office from Richmond. Mrs. Lee says she is much surprised and very much pleased that an official of the Fair would travel all that distance to return valued property.

Mrs. Lee won 49 ribbons at the 5-County Fair and State Fair. Her winnings this year of 42 ribbons gives her a total of 448 ribbons won for a period of about 11 years.

Mrs. William O'Brien

Hasn't Found 'Leisure' Yet

Mrs. William O'Brien (Bessie), after many years of teaching first and second graders in Pamplin, Oakville and Vera schools, has "retired" to help with farming and gardening at the O'Brien home, near Vera.

She says that with the many things to do around a farm, the 'leisure' time she was looking forward to, hasn't shown up yet.

The tiny roses she holds in her hand in the photo, are only a part of several flower beds surrounding her neat, well-kept home. She shares cuttings and flower slips with other gardening enthusiasts and is quite happy when the transplants do as well or even better than the parent plant.

First graders, especially, she says, have always been a joy to teach. She adds that though she will miss the routine of getting to school, grading papers, helping with boots in snowy weather and all, there are many projects waiting to be done. In particular, she is looking forward to making an afghan and says that will all the new colors and patterns from which to choose, it will be a short winter, indeed, trying to work in knitting and crocheting sessions.

But of course, she still has to find that "leisure time" promised by so many when she announced she wouldn't be teaching this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winston and children motored to Fort Bragg, North Carolina Sunday where they visited the Winston's son, Robert C. Winston, Jr., who is receiving his basic training.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schlenker left Monday for their home in Hollywood, Florida after a visit with Dr. and Mrs. C. O'Brien. Mr. Schlenker man is the sister of Mrs. O'Brien.
